Dear Tom:

Yesterday afternoon I took to Foster the hand-written letter enclosed with your note to me of 18 February. He read it through, expressed his sincere appreciation, and kept it on his table.

You will be glad to know that as he read it he was sitting up in a chair and later took a little walk around his quarters with me.

He seems to be standing the treatment well, as far as one can judge from only two goes at it. Yesterday, Sunday, was a day of rest from the treatments but he is having it again today.

He is following developments with the keenest interest.

Clover joins me with messages to Frances and to you.

Sincerely,

Allen W. Dulles

Dear Tom:

As promised in our recent telephone conversation, I am forwarding copies of the two speeches given by Khrushchev at Minsk. They are quite significant.
